Introduction: I don’t believe every End Times prophecy I listened will happen; I believe most prophecies will. Some of what is listed here won’t happen as a whole or won’t be on a large scale. This will outline what will happen. People who do not accept religion as a fact will not believe one thing what I write here where not one event here is correct, it is all mythology to them. Before I start this, think of how much I will provide you with. When they describe “climate change” ending the world, they give you such little insight and reason as to why that is possible, they give you a paragraph at most. They will never tell you one thing here as they are not religious. We all know the world could end, but because I can “never” disprove any of what I have provided, they will tell me this until the end of time. Seven of their incorrect theories of how the world will end is by Russia fighting America in a nuclear war, zombies taking over, an alien invasion, “climate change”, a global pandemic, the world being overtaken by robots, the sun expanding turning to a crisp, the economy collapsing which I had thought my whole life, “nobody knows”, and overpopulation. What will happen is chaos will erupt worldwide. So many different things will happen. It will get out of control where few will be able to handle it. What will happen is that the earth will fail. No matter what I write, it will either be lost or not understood during End Times due to the confusion in the world.

People who think the Bible will protect them during End Times are the equivalent of a pro football coach showing up to a game with a pro basketball playbook. For some it will work, and they will win the football game but for the overwhelming majority it will not. That’s why we need the Quran that teaches us Muslims to wait for Muhammad to come during End Times.

If everyone throughout history worshipped one God than the world would know it is a fact that you can take everyone’s testimony up until 1920. Polytheism would not return in End Times since it was never present to being with, there must be a form of skepticism. I can’t believe polytheism because their false god’s have been gone for a very long time.

Events will happen medium or fast during End Times.

There will come a day where a maniac has lost his mind not that he is cynical stabs a mother’s son to death. The mother sees her son dead, she instantly runs over, picks up her son holding him dead in her arms. She is in a state of shock, denial, and is crying to no end. Nobody can hear her cries nor do anything about the maniac who is loose, the world is ending. All the mother does is cry knowing her son is dead, she’s removed from the earth nothing affects her all she can do is freeze in the position she is in, nobody comforts her, everyone is screaming on the streets, the world should end by this point since chaos has broken out nationwide, but it doesn't end. This is near to the end, eventually the world stops, it doesn't keep going and all hell will break loose, that's when we know the world ends. I don't know what will cause the world to end but Allah's will, or something will cause the laws of the earth to fail. By then the Angels will pour from the Heavens and will stab certain or many people to death with their swords, one stab from them is an instant kill and none can run from an Angel they move faster than the speed of light. Now this could be the wrong understanding of End Times, there could be a final Jewish/Muslim fight or Christian/Muslim, fight. I personally don't think there is any chance of this at all, I am not declaring myself right you are free to believe that I won't argue it I just don't think it will happen that way there are other ways it could end. Religion offers things that the mind cannot imagine, but in End Times people will expect religion to give to them why cannot be offered to us ever it is not part of religion it is the opposite.

Abrahamic religions are expanding at a rapid rate. Christianity has 2.2 billion followers and will have 3.3 billion followers by 2050. Islam had 1.6 billion followers in 2010 and will have 2.8 billion followers by 2050. That explains why the public couldn't see End Times coming if the world ended in 2050, End Times may occur in 20205. I believe the world will end 50 to 150 years after the year 2050.

Most or all countries of the earth except for the ones left that are religious earth will become nations hypocrites possibly the worst mankind has ever seen. They will be different ideologies that cover all hypocrites from far left, liberal, center, conservative, far right.

During End Times, no one will be believed because the public will keep claiming the other side started an argument when the other side responded to an argument.

I don't know if this to be a fact if you have to lie to keep yourself safe on this and/or have to lie to people about the news and history. Then you are not a truthful person. Islam may argue that taqiyya is needed to live, but it also says die not except in the state of Islam that may or may not come first I'm 50-50 about it. We still need for people to be Muslim; I've already shown if people's lives are in danger, the majority will eventually quit the religion they have families to protect, and Islam lets you leave the religion if your life is in danger. I typed this only to talk about if you must lie about history that is the part because then you probably are not a truthful person that's my concern. I don't know life or religion well enough to know that it's another 50-50. Islam says in End Times there will not be one truthful person left, I might have figured it out why there wouldn't be that you a good human being are physically incapable of being truthful.

If you have to be 25 to be at the age of understanding where you are held in account for what you do, it isn't a good sign that most of the protesters/activists are aged 14-25. They aren't ready for it, the schools/colleges are trying to get them to have a voice and become more and more political, they will want to make sure their voice is what is done, and politicians will do it for them. This is a concern of End Times that the youth will come up with such bad ideas and now we see why they aren't old enough to determine a country.

Do not amp up the earth, do not spam social media with views and posts about Islam. I know you are partly doing this for fame, all this does is add on stress for viewers and yourself through using TikTok which is usually the one abused. During End Times, many people will try to amp the world up, you are to stay calm and tell people that everything will be ok.

If you have so many bad memories, you will hit breaking point and during End Times, nothing will get you out of the breaking point you are in.

The main reason why End Times will happen is because of social media, social media will distort religion on a global level.

Keep in mind, the president goes to Church a good number of times in his 4-year term. The president is never viewed as crazy for doing this and the president will never speak of the Bible End Times ever.

During End Times, people will be losing their minds, so they will not even care what happens in Islam where a practice is added that contradicts the Quran itself. Even people who dedicated their life to Islam and studied the faith will not show care or concern about what is happening to the religion they love at all, remember good, pious people will lose their minds. However, the breeze may prevent this in time before we see something truly tragic.

It is so that in Islam Allah teaches that Angels are out there. During End Times, you will know Islam is correct for teaching you of what can be proven through the Quran the unexplainable. You as a Muslim know that without the Angels, there is no Quran since no man can produce an infallible holy book and the Quran revealed that Angels do exist. If Islam has Angels correct, then there is a great chance or possible confirmation that there is one God and not multiple deities that exist which you may believe during End Times when everything is collapsing, and the unexplainable jinn come about to deceive you. This will make it so much easier to believe one God exists, to me it is some sort of cheat code to protect you into believing in one God since I have shown during End Times so many people will be confused what is happening to the earth, they will just say there are multiple deities when there clearly is not.

The world will become out of control during End Times that the public won't even think, they will just act. This is because they won't understand their actions. They won't think of right and wrong; they will just do something at random, that isn't like them at all. This would be an action from someone such as them stealing from an orphan after how they spent years and years giving back. They won't be stealing for thrill or to get a victory. They will be doing this because they cannot control their brain at all. All they will see is chaos, hearing sirens all day, watching people fist fight all the time. Whether they can realize what they did or not afterwards will be irrelevant because this will be so widespread. When they do this, it will be out of no anger, it will not be because they do not care for others, it will just be forced to happen. We have to be in an environment that protects us, not the exact opposite. Humanity has never seen the exact opposite.

I know what a sick laugh sounds like versus a laugh that may not be appropriate what it sounds like. Yet, the professionals do nothing about it, nor care in the slightest that they too can recognize a sick laugh from a laugh that is not appropriate. I can do this laugh for people, I know what it sounds like, it is distinct. During End Times, the elites will try to make the public do a laugh like that to turn normal people sick gradually as a tool.

People don't want to be wrong; an antichrist will come and tell them they are right all the time.

What will happen during End Times is that many people will not talk and will be silenced entirely. This is because their loved ones only get angry at everything they hear from them beyond religion and politics since the world is collapsing. They do not want to say anything to their parents because the last thing they want to do is make their loved ones so angry and be told that they don't know what they are talking about. They become speechless from all this and what is happening to the earth. Dialogue will fail this way, not like in the book 1984 where there is at least words with "dialogue" (not really but you get the point). See how many different things will happen at once?

During End Times, all people of the earth will believe every problem they had or could have past or present, every concern they could possibly have been caused or will be caused by you alone for what you believe since you do not believe the same thing as they do be it political and or religious. So, anything that could possibly make someone angry which all people of the earth have anger, all it will be let out on the streets where every worst possible insult you could possibly imagine will be used by both sides or however many sides there may be in each part of the country/world. All people will talk about is the other person's religious or political beliefs. No matter how minor the problem was such as if someone accidentally stepped on persons toe and the person apologized for it, this memory will cause someone who was never known to get angry but in a few occasions will cause them to be so outraged that this person could not possibly control the hate they have for the other person. This means nobody can get away from the hatred in every person on the earth wherever they are or wherever they go.

The Muslims will start canceling all the hadith's because they don't want to accept them since they don't want to be hated by the world, just like the End Times prophecy warned. Because there is "Quran only" (that's what they call themselves, quotes are in no way to insult them), these Muslims will just go along with this as if the hadiths cannot be verified in any way.

One key thing that will happen during End Times is that people of all religions of everywhere of the earth will do far too much for their cause thinking they are helping their cause. What will happen is that they will crash in such a way between the world failing and them constantly trying for their cause to succeed that all they can do is fall to their knees and take their own lives with the gun they have with them This is because their mind has gone "insane" (not "sick" but completely gone) having what I described as being far beyond the word "stress" could possibly imply. This would happen to anyone of the earth since we are not Prophets who can handle this amount of "stress" so fast.

Leading up to End Times, the environment will be so difficult that the Holy Books will do so little to help the public.

People during End Times are going to get so angry they will start crying. This is a cry for help from people you would never expect. The cry will not be heard since both sides the leftists and conservatives will have plenty of people like this. Who would you listen to? Which side? Are you wise enough to pick neither?

During End Times, the "preachers" will become delusional that they will act out of place becoming animals. So much of their message was about using logic, yet they will use no logic during End Times. These "preachers" thought they were "defending justice", but they became animals for their "cause".

What will happen during End Times is that people will become so overwhelmed by all of what is happening that they just collapse where they will not get up for anyone or any event going on. They will have lost their minds.

A worker at the waiting unit has never seen someone ever collapse where they had not keep being lifted back up. During End Times, this will happen to such a degree no employee could ever work at a hospital during these events.

We had the youngest 33rd degree freemason who always believes an injustice is done to him at a psych ward. He flashed horns at someone who tried to cause permanent damage to him (like it isn't obvious enough what freemasonry is). He speaks all day of what he thinks is "theology" it all becomes distorted when you talk to him, he's all over the place with his beliefs and he keeps adding more and more material. This is exactly what Islam warns of during End Times.

During End Times, people will feel judged by everyone in society where they are never welcome, any society like this would collapse over a short span of time.

If one serious event can turn someone into a completely different person, think about what will happen to most of humanity when serious event after serious event is happening and the world is ending during End Times. This is concerning.

People will be prevented from telling the truth during End Times because they had lied so much to protect themselves, people will become liars about everything that the truth becomes a lie.

During End Times, people will be trapped into these very long conversations for hours that they cannot get out of. This will cause stress, fear, and doubt in what they do.

Truths will be seen as being "negative" during End Times, this means a portion of the public will be censored and the ones who tell the truth will have to argue for them to explain the truth.

When someone use words like "injustice" it amps the person up, expect people to talk about "injustice" a lot during End Times.

If anger means you are wrong by default where you need a new view in today's world, then things will get ugly fast. The people who are angry are showing their care and are getting angry out of concern for themselves and others. This will also confuse people who are doing the right thing. The voices that must be heard will not be in society, but I have already talked about this so much in previous paragraphs. I am just trying to show why things will get out of hand, not specifically how they will by this point in my paragraphs.

It will seem like a lie that when you pray you believe in Allah. What I think will happen is the prayer will “shut off.” This means that no one will have a connection with Allah during End Times and the believers will all be deceased by the wind that comes to wipe them out.

During End Times, so many people will say “the Bible and the Quran are anecdotal evidence for God”, forgetting how many people Monotheists throughout history are including the 25 major Prophets.

Because of social media raising the first generation in 2022, this will only lead faster to End Times and it may be a prophecy where they shun their parents, we may be closer than I thought.

I don’t think there will be any comedy during End Times, but there will be many people with a sick laugh watching people suffer.

People will keep talking and talking all day long during End Times, even people who rarely talk will talk all day being near forced to by the media and friends who will keep trying to talk to them for how to fix the problem of what is going on in End Times. Other people will shut off completely, possibly 5% of the public.

Knowledge will be taken away from End Times because no one will read even an article on the internet their life will be too hectic for any time for knowledge. This will cause people to forget what they learned and so much will happen at once they won’t know who to side with during wars.

During End Times, the Angels will send a distraction in one area and have a conflict in another area.

There will be so many phone calls to police where there is a “hostage situation” of someone with a gun threatening family members with it during End Times. This is concerning.

People during End Times will want it more and more of attention other times just to talk about this “unheard of” event of the End Times happening. It is the best of the best event to ever happen in their mind and they cannot help but talk about it alone nothing else, this will radicalize them in its own way. They keep jumping up and down like a maniac while they talk and talk about it. They will go crazy unintentionally. I have a visual for this.

Because there is no way to never be viewed as a threat even if you have no criminal history, but you are a big guy in today’s world, I think the world might end, you can guess how from this sentence.

Everyone during End Times will think of the opposition of democrat or republican as a “retard” to the extreme. The dumbest of dumb, beyond what we know to be the dumbest of all.

We all know this, but the criminals in society who aren’t in prisons will commit horrible, horrible actions in public because they know they can get away with it given that the cops are nowhere to be found. It will be far worse than just robbing a bank for instance.”

What I have observed is that lgbt and masturbation has become normalized in society it is seen as the norm. During End Times, promiscuity will become normalized where people will have sex in the streets, it won’t even be frowned on by parents. Anyone will be able to have sex regardless of who they are.

The elites will give task after task for things people to do disguised as entertainment in the hopes of stressing people out as much as possible. They already do this with Fox News, that’s the goal to sensationalize everything such as every news story possible.

Once the Quran and Bible fail to turn on the publics brains to get them to care, that will be it. The world will crash very fast.

People will not admit fault for anything either out of cowardice, leadership, or a form of a defense mechanism. No one will know who is trustworthy when it is done by someone to them.

People will be told “don’t take things so seriously” during End Times, it will make people angrier because the world is collapsing, and they are told it’s “No big deal.” There will be no balance on how serious to take End Times.

People will be unsure of how many false “gods” there are in their minds so they will keep adding on more false ones when they see the jinn who will dupe them. There will be jinn that appear to the public, the public will give the jinn false names claiming they are characters in the Bible we have today or the Quran.

Because the opposition is always wrong to the person, it doesn’t matter what a person does or says to the other person since you are always right, and they are worse than anyone ever produced throughout history during End Times. You can expect many serious conflicts because of this.

Every time someone “discovers” a false god (a jinn) in the public, the person making this “discovery” will freak out and enter a state of disbelief thinking they have discovered something so amazing the world could not possibly handle. They won’t even make sense describing it to someone because the jinn will confuse their speech when the person hears the jinn talk meaning they will emulate the jinn’s speech and the jinn’s actions. This will happen on a widespread scale.

People will try to cancel everything during End Times.

The people with gender pronouns will claim multiple personalities during End Times. They will claim to have powers if they haven’t already.

Alcoholics feel “powerless”, people will lose the ability to care for their own good, others will be too occupied with their fears, so they won’t get their friends or family up who are doing horrible with alcohol. They will keep drinking and drinking to a point where they become blackout drunk each day and cannot function where they possess no skills of judgement at all. Because there will be so many alcoholics in society during End Times, it will make reality distorted. What I am trying to say is no one’s testimony will be valid on for instance which politician should be elected. Politics cannot function anymore because of this, yet it will still be talked about. Also, because everyone wakes up hungover the next day, they will forget what happened the day before making their testimony invalid for what is happening around them during End Times. Between all of what goes on, the heavy alcoholics will create a utopia in their minds known as escapism. There will also be people who talk and talk all day to escape using their phones if need be.

Escapism will be huge during End Times, people will do anything to escape either for thrill, for a utopia in their mind, or because they cannot tolerate what is happening around them.

During End Times, all people will lack professionalism and care of any kind. This means when they say they want good for the world, they are really lying they either know it or they don’t know that they want power above all else.

During End Times, people will be cheering and cheering like maniacs after seeing the Anti-Christ all excited.

End Times will be a dystopia for believers and a utopia for disbelievers.

Most charity will be used to buy cigarettes and alcohol first instead of food and shelter in America if it isn’t already.

Loss of religious knowledge will occur where people will explain Scripture wrong to fill a narrative, as if they don’t do that already. People will add on Bible verses that do not exist and pass them off as Scripture claiming that the Bible is not infallible so it can be added to, Bibles as such will be produced in masses.

During End Times, people will clap at the worst of ideas where the ideas either make no sense at all and they do not benefit society in any way.

If they don’t already, every celebrity and politician will have dramatic story after dramatic story involving them.

Because society will get so uneducated, people will think you are argumentative when you are right.

During End Times, there will be people who will keep competing with material they buy or steal to flaunt their wealth.

Religious terminology will be confused to the extreme by people who keep coming up with their own definitions of words and verses.

People will make every single false claim against you because they hate you during End Times.

The youth will have no priorities in life with no direction if they don’t already. Because of this, more of the youth both men and women will turn out miserable, as I have shown before, they will resort to drugs and alcohol because they cannot get what they want out of life. If the world wasn’t ending, why is something of this magnitude happening?

The youth will become rebellious in End Times because they will not be perceived the way they want. Meaning they are so misunderstood in society that they feel society must be protested all day long.

During End Times, people will want their country to either crash or reform so much that their country is no longer recognizable.

People will get furious over the slightest things during End Times.

People will be abusing street drugs to no end.

People won’t take responsibility for anything wrong they do.

Believe me when I say no religious or political group will surrender no matter what during End Times. Remember too that they all have numbers.

All the meanwhile, society is worried about at least 33 percent of people’s competency.

People will buy and buy to no end anything on the shelves before End Times starts. They will do anything for fame on their social media platforms.

The expectations for life will get way too high to turn into something unheard of.

I do believe there will be a talmudic-Islamic war in the Middle East

There won’t be a giant Muslim Christian war in America because the Christians in America would have to somehow cross overseas to reach the Middle East. That’s why I know America will tank. There could be a Muslim-Christian war from Africa and Europe not sure how someone in Germany would get to Syria. They would have to take a 39-hour car ride so I am doubting there will be one.

Everything will be destroyed because it won’t be deemed good enough for society, society will want better material.

People will get fed up with all the drama and gossip society will bring forth with politics, news, celebrities etc.

The youth will delete history, everything will go for something “new”.

Because of Donald Trump saying the most insane things on purpose, politicians will go further with it in the future to get more votes.

The youths’ ideas will be seen as “new”.

Christians will think the real Jesus who will call people to Islam will be viewed as the Antichrist because in Christianity, Jesus is considered god and the son of god who was crucified for our sins.

Christians will call the Mahdi the Antichrist.

When the Antichrist defends the zionist state, Christians will mistake the Antichrist for their god.

The youth will keep competing and competing to impress others through any method possible be it knowledge, fitness, wealth, activities etc. They will see no joy in life and begin to protest.

What may happen is people will stop praying because they will think they have everything they want out of life.

One thing I wonder is if people will want sympathy during End Times. I don’t think they will want any at all, they will be too excited for what they think will come that they overlook their mental health issues. They will be fighting for all the fame and power they can get, they will use sympathy, but they won’t feel bad about their problems, they will overlook their problems.

The Antichrist will try to provide the public the best experience ever given on the earth. The believer will see it as the worst possible. The Antichrist will keep telling the public what to do and the public will follow the Antichrist’s every command. The Antichrist will deceive the public into claiming to the public that they will be rich and famous.

People will get very bold in society; they will forget cops can arrest them for their actions or they will just not care. The internet will be wrecked with people posting awful material of themselves.

During End Times people's egos will be inflated too high to where they view any sort of criticism as a personal attack on them.

During End Times, people will show off anything for the sole purpose of claiming they are better than you. They won't even care if they come off as embarrassing based on what they are showing and how much attention they are seeking.

During End Times, people will have no shame whatsoever, their only concern will be themselves. They won't care about anything that doesn't concern them.

What will happen is that these verses will have no value, everyone will keep repeating them to the point it becomes excessive. People will repeat the same verses.

Because there is so much information and misinformation out there, the truth will just get lost. There won't be any time to research who is correct during End Times. It takes years to understand this material. Meanwhile the Imams are either quitting or dying so who is expected to teach the Quran?

People won't look for humility and humbleness in a country's leader. All they will look for is what fame a country's leader has. People already look for a country's leader to make headlines and do something "historic".

What might happen is everyone will start abusing prescription medications and die from it where they are either trying to party or want to escape that badly. Since so many people in society have access to these pills that could easily kill you, they will just hand them out to friends.

During End Times people will walk like they are superior or will walk like they are a victim.

End Times will be so traumatic for many they won't remember anything.

The youth will think Muslims are infidels for no reason at all and will kill them everywhere more specifically at places of worship. They will believe in something completely new that the wahhabs come up with where all are an "infidel" that isn't a wahhab, this is scary.

We humans overthink things. This means during End Times people will think the Quran is not infallible because they overthink the idea of the Quran being delivered to mankind. It is that simple.

People will keep trying for a better life and it will get out of control during End Times where people ruin countries protesting.

They will all follow the Antichrist because they will believe it will bring them the happiness they want. They keep chasing a better life as their first concern and the Antichrist will offer it to them. Think of how probably 70% of religious people are religious for status in America.

During End Times people will think so highly of themselves they will deny all Prophets because they believe a Prophet could not be above them.

Someone told me that Muhammad couldn't convince the world of Islam, that is not at all what goes on. People don't want to believe in Islam, that's the truth.

During End Times there will be so many things to get angry at it will overwhelm people.

People are not going to be productive during End Times they will just mess around and destroy everything.

Think what it will do where every one of your shortcomings and everything wrong in the world is blamed on the Christians, Muslims, talmudists etc.

I'm spelling it out for you that the people at the bottom will be forced to fight whether Christian, talmudist, hindu, democrat, republican. Mankind will never see a war bigger than this it will be every country if you think WWII was out of control End Times is night and day.

Once the wahhabs start adding false hadiths much more, that means the public will keep adding to the Islamic faith that the religion is no longer recognizable, function, or is it understood.

People will be so overwhelmed during End Times they will become forgetful of everything.

During End Times people will give directions and people won't listen. They will either be shut off where they don't follow orders or will think the other person is bossing them around.

During End Times so many things will happen at once and it will make people believe that people talk to God when they falsely claim it because miracles are happening. Liars, people who claim a false god that is not Allah and people who want power will be believed and followed.

People will believe their religion is all right, meaning they are far superior to everyone, and that their neighbors are so dumb they can't do anything rendering them worthless.

During End Times people will just get worked up over and over to the point they start freaking out where they don't act normally.

What the public will be taught is everyone does everything wrong in religion that is not theirs during End Times. This is scary.

During End Times people will mistake that religion cannot be criticized versus themselves thinking they are infallible.

During End Times people will not care for the consequences at all no matter the scale of what they do or say.

During End Times the time will go very fast so people will not have a grip on reality because life is happening so fast, and they are going from place to place. It will remove them from reality.

I believe people will just pass by Constantinople to try to get to the Middle East or to get to Europe. It won't be conquered by anyone; it will have no nation run it.

Hajj will be abandoned during End Times. The false hajj won't be run by any country; people will just do the false hajj freely.

There will be gold everywhere in the Middle East, maybe the world, it will be the equivalent of a desert with sand everywhere except with gold.

I don't know for sure if Muslims will conquer Europe (Rome). If I have to pick, I would say no.

People will get so discouraged and are taught never to get angry that they will quit the emotions they need during End Times.

There will be a portion of people so horrendous they will use religious texts as a means for their cynical behavior claiming that is what the religion speaks of claiming that everyone else has it wrong. It's already begun though, the hypocrisy we see. You will see people claim that the verses mean they can kill anyone they want. This is concerning.

No matter what people will do when we are near to End Times, it will end the earth. Even not taking a stand will do nothing since you still have to teach Islam and people hate Islam.

People will get so bold during End Times they will keep reinforcing for instance talmudists or Muslims that they are right in what they do by hating and trashing everything about them and what they do because they trust their Scripture 100%. The religious leaders will do and say nothing about this. This will lead to serious fights in the public.

With Islam they won't know who is who trying to corrupt the religion or have such horrific ideas so they will start assaulting the ones who are the real Muslims. People will report on it and say, "this is what islam is all about".

People's lives will be so hectic during End Times that not only do they forget Scripture, but they will forget the laws of the country they live in. This is one reason why people will murder during End Times.

I spelled this out before that society can't handle the pressure and who is standing up for what is right when they get into a physical altercation there will just be so much of it.

The media will convince most people that they have to protest and protest doing any means while the world is ending so that the world counts on their protesting.

What people will do during End Times is they will start justifying things that aren't natural because they are convinced you are all wrong and their strange ways are all right.

During End Times people will think you just keep justifying your actions out of envy or pride because you keep explaining why Islam is needed on the earth and how the talmudists are all wrong in what they do.

During End Times everything in Islam will be deemed hate speech such as terms like infidel and sodomite that by saying these things Muslims want to get into conflicts.

During End Times the media will keep pushing knowledge and everything will come out, people will go mad and start doing things without thinking. It is possible that when people have sex on the streets plenty of them won't do that for rebellion but because they have lost all control of everything where they are so motivated to do something which has no comparison to someone who is trying to be cynical by having sex in the streets.

What I am trying to say is that so many different things will happen at once. Each country will have something different going on let me show you. The wahhabs will be pushed out of Mecca and Medina, the Americans will have to fight democrat vs republican, the zionists will be attacking Muslim countries, protests will be everywhere, people will be stealing from stores, parts of Europe and Africa will have a holy war, in China a dragon will emerge, people will be confused what is going on, other people will be screaming for their life to end, the Antichrist will emerge, people will be waiting for Jesus and Muhammad to emerge, nukes could be fired off, false preachers are everywhere trying to get people's attention, gold will come to Arabia where people will chase it, and more will happen. The alternative which I highly doubt will happen is that one event will happen, and everything goes mad where people fight in the streets in this final fight. Why would the Bible and the Quran with the hadiths as well list all these events if just one final event happens?

The most stressful places you could ever go during End Times will be religious centers by far.

In society you will never get attention for acting crazy people will just ignore you. During End Times people will get attention from others for acting crazy and saying crazy material.

Because society will fail in End Times, they will be the ones who determine all this about what is acceptable and what isn't in society such as theft and lying. One of the many reasons why trust will be lost.

People will not put any thought into what is being told to them by others during End Times.

What will happen is religious people will get so mad between each religion because they will for instance as a Muslim believe that a Christian is lying to them about Islam being right. All religions believe in End Times of some sort. This is another concerning thing.

Remember that no one knows what the future unfolds but they will all claim they will know it because of End Times prophecies all beliefs will claim something will happen to the land of Palestine the land all Abrahamic faiths fight over. No one knows what will happen. Something huge will happen in Palestine we just don't know what I personally have no clue.

Anything will become believable during End Times so anyone will take someone's claims as fact.

The left will be pushing so much love and tolerance during End Times that they will forget when someone does a serious injustice. All they will be doing is yelling love, acceptance, peace, they will look strange.

At the psych wards and prisons there will be fight after fight during End Times. Whether the cause is mania, fear, hate, being tough doesn't matter.

All these people who would draft dodge are going to be forced to fight during End Times. I can only imagine the rules of war they will violate, being that they are beyond it they are part of an elite class.

During End Times people will follow the Antichrist thinking it will better themselves the Antichrist will lie to them and say it will make them into their best version. The Antichrist won’t just lie about giving people power over others.

People keep competing to live the best life, of course the world will end because they will wish for things the world cannot give.

All they are looking for is for you to admit problems if you are mentally ill, it takes so much more than that, that doesn’t do anything.

During End Times people will get so passionate they start breaking everything to make a statement. These are not criminals nor mad people.

The environment will change everyday people.

Islam will get messed up from the wahhabs to the point every Muslim will be calling each other a kaffir in anger over very slight differences because the world is ending, and they don’t trust the other person. It won’t just be Sunni-Shia it will be every sect divide and your neighbor will be a different sect.

People will just say you are delusional for the world ending because they will blame religion as the cause for it ending.

What psychology professionals will say is that religions cause serious mental health issues based on what is happening at the religious centers. That’s when you know the world is ending.

Plenty of people won’t think the imams are right when the world is ending because they expect for a certain hadith to happen and only that one. So, if an Imam warns the world is ending plenty of Muslims won’t follow him. It’s not that they don’t trust him they just think he is very early since there are minor and major signs of the world ending. We are in minor sign times all Muslims agree on that. If there are too many minor signs, then the major signs will follow yet plenty of Muslims expect a major sign or multiple major signs. Saying that there are too many minor signs a portion of Muslims won’t believe you.

Whoever they are, the 12 tribes of Israel will not be united in Palestine during End Times.

People will no longer be inspired to do the right thing during End Times. There will be no good guys. Everyone is just fighting for their right to live either through peaceful means or through serious conflicts.

There will be many car crashes during End Times and no cops will be able to show up. The lights won’t work, or people won’t abide by them.

I highly doubt electricity will be shut off anywhere. If it is, it will be shut off everywhere.

During End Times it will be as if an attack on them personally or their son or daughter if for instance a Muslim, republican, or a talmudist dies unjustly which will happen a lot and there will be a group blamed for it where it bares all the responsibility. This will cause serious conflicts.

Plenty of people won't trust anyone so they will slaughter anyone they meet. These people were good people who had many friends and were kind to all before End Times.

Everyone will believe that every belief system other than their own will want to see them fail in life.

During End Times the elites will say that Allah is not the same God as the god of America who embraces all beliefs saying there are many gods that exist. Either that or they will say that Allah is a false god. Most of the earth will believe the elites.

There may or may not be seven plagues during End Times. I wage there won't but if there are they will only kill off around 3% of humanity.

Many people will be laughing hysterically as the world is ending.

During End Times, many people will be saying "we are getting close, the Christians/Muslims/talmudists are planning to attack us". What this will do is amp up the earth.

People won't give to charity during End Times because they won't feel respected.

People will just assume the worst of intent during End Times.

When the Antichrist comes, they will believe a utopia occur from his presence.

Saudi Arabia will start purposely banning everything through hadiths, so people get no joy out of life during End Times. Or they will do the opposite and allow everything known to man. Right now, they are allowing everything they can. What I think is the country will allow everything and their religious leaders will try to ban everything causing protest after protest.

During End Times plenty of Muslims aren't going to want to fight the wars.

During End Times religious leaders will keep asking for more and more money from followers.

There will be plenty of people with great ideas on how to run society, but their behavior will be terrible during End Times.

People are going to sin so much during End Times the world will have to collapse.

People will start justifying rape, sexual humiliation of any kind because all they did was obsess about sex all day thinking they knew well for the other person. They will obsess about everything the other gender does sexually to the point they feel they have rights over the other gender thinking they are a “hero” that is “saving” them.

What will happen is so many things will happen during End Times they will think the Quran and hadiths didn’t tell them of it when Islam did.

I don’t know what percent of people think this way but whoever thinks End Times is going to be something fun or this final battle where good conquers evil and the heroes win cheering, I could not possibly disagree with you more. The chaos that will happen will be way too much. My proof is a hadith that one will pass by someone’s grave and want to be in it.

A portion of people in society have never put in effort for anything in their lives. During End Times all will have to fight to survive, these people can’t give that, they have no training for it. What can you do with someone like that?

What will happen is people will figure they will be far happier having no good ethics, so they will follow it competing to have the worst ethics possible. I have no doubt about this, for this sentence it really is that simple.

What will happen is the youth will say “we know more than Islam; we don’t want to be educated by Islam anymore”.

During End Times, the Mosques will be chaos partly because a portion of people will say everything must be embraced every person must be embraced and they will yell to get their way.

During End Times, people will be so excited they will be screaming in the streets as if an emergency had just happened.

People will believe their beliefs are 100% correct during End Times. This will pump them up like you cannot believe.

During End Times a portion of people will be begging and screaming for it to stop on the streets, and it will not.

During End Times the youth will speak like they are the best of faith, but they will be the worst of all generations.

During End Times people will just keep adding and adding to religion things that do not exist for instance aliens so as example roman mythology of any kind like Zeus where they will say Zeus is a fact. This is one way of how polytheism will emerge during End Times. Even if Muslims believed Zeus was a jinn and not a false god, this will get distorted anyways because Muslims will keep adding more and more jinn to the point the jinn are infinite. This will cause other religions to become polytheist because they believe their false god is one of many, they just don't believe that yet but during End Times they will. This is another reason why to be Muslim and not Christian during End Times.

During End Times everyone will believe their beliefs should be universal. This will cause endless clashes none can avoid. There will be no peace.

No matter how much education people have in religion it won't matter because they won't go by the principles during End Times. They won't have discipline. That's why the hadith says the Quran won't go beyond their throats.

During End Times, what the elites will do is take someone's opinion with no credibility and say it is part of religion to believe that dogs can fly. The elites will do this to try to deny reality to distort religion to convince people that dogs can fly because of religion. It may sound absurd that someone could be duped into believing dogs can fly but when so many things are happening at once and no one knows what is going on, the elites can convince the public that dogs can fly. There are far better examples that someone can believe will come about. Think of climate change destroying the earth, the elites will claim that is what is happening.

What will happen during End Times is that people will believe they know more than everyone else that the other person has no clue at all what they are doing, meaning there will be no trust at all.

Because of the fact Christians have canceled out most Bible verses, their followers will think they are more moral than Christ because Christ could not have been better than them because Christ is in the Bible and the Bible contains stories they don't agree with in the Old Testament.

During End Times people will say that Muhammad said aliens existed along with ogres to keep adding to Islam when Muhammad didn't in hopes of converting people to Islam. Yes, I am spelling out that people will keep adding to Islam to the point everything mythological is put in the hadiths.

During End Times, people will follow their own desires instead of what religion teaches and distort the faith.

During End Times the elites will put out all these allusions and holograms on the TV to confuse people into thinking things are happening when they are not.

Houses of worship could unite as one in the west and come with a “new” belief.

In the future and leading up to End Times, America’s religious centers will not agree on anything politically, they will be so divided over minor things turned major. This will destroy America; it won’t be a country it will just be political and religious parties. America doesn’t have an Ummah either, all they will have been division.

During End Times, America will change what the term Prophet means and will say you can be a Prophet or a god. This is freemasonry believing you are a false god of some sort.

During End Times, the cops will get a lot of calls for couples fighting each other at home.

People are going to say we are pushing religion onto them during End Times and that they want their own “spiritual” beliefs.

During End Times, the youth will say they are not alive for Islam they get to decide what they want whether they are Muslim or what to do with the Islamic faith.

During End Times, the youth will say the Quran does not apply to their personal lives and it is someone’s choice to be a Muslim or not meaning not only can someone leave the faith for atheism, but that Sharia Law shouldn’t exist.

During End Times, the youth will say it is a human rights violation to have Muslim women only marry Muslim men. This is an example of how they will try to distort or end Islam.

During End Times, the youth will say we Muslims distort the religion not to befriend people who are against the zionist state however big it may be.

The youths’ minds will be so removed from what they learned in history and religion it won’t affect them the news how it is leading up to End Times. This will happen worldwide. Their concern will only be the worldly life which is what social media does. If the youth were to inform them but to have a good time which is what will happen in the mosques where it will be about having a good time and not about knowledge nor discipline.

During End Times, the citizens won’t trust that their leaders do what is in their best interest when it comes to wars and economic policies.

During End Times, people will be sprung into doing things because End Times will be so hectic that they rush to seek others to help them with what is going on. This is an example that things are going to happen so fast it will be chaotic.

Through tolerance and acceptance lgbt will be legalized in the Middle East.

What will happen is that the Ummah will just forget that the cause was to keep the world going because the Ummah will become too distracted with the worldly life and will be excited watching the world end thinking the world is entering something “new”. They will not realize what is going on.

During End Times, Muslims will call someone who votes liberal a kafir when they themselves vote conservative. This is a big sign of End Times.

During End Times, there will be so many people who want the world tolerant and accepting of everyone so they will protest all day for a world like this. It’s not that they want everyone to love each other but that they want the world to embrace every idea people have whether normal or unnatural.

During End Times, the Muslims will believe they are trying to divide each other because they differ over one or two things.

During End Times, people will think they cannot read the Bible and the Quran because so many religious leaders will confuse them over verses, this is one way of how religious knowledge will be lost.

During End Times, Muslims will think you go by desires, or you innovate things because of disagreements over practices in Islam.

Religious knowledge will be lost because people will keep flooding and flooding their social media with anything. This means none can be organized and assembled, that’s the result it’s nobody’s “fault”. All the important material will be lost.

There will be argument after argument over what Quran and Bible verses are trying to tell us since people will be turning to Scripture to fix what is going on within their religion.

Everyone wants you to be the happiest you can possibly be, everyone wants you to live the best life you possibly could. Something bad could happen, and it will.

During End Times, the internet nor cable will be shut down.

During End Times, all the verses of the Quran will be forgotten because Muslims and people who hate Islam will talk about the same few verses arguing back and forth.

During End Times, no matter what is happening, the agnostics will say “aliens” are causing it.

Many youth during End Times are going to get angry and say “I don’t want to be a Muslim” because the wahhabs will have ruined it for them.

The wahhab scholars will either get rid of all the standards in Islam or raise them so high that no one could possibly match them. I am betting the second option as to what they will do.

Muslims will try to unify the earth so they will legalize everything. As Muhammad said in the hadiths the sin, he feared the most of the Ummah is the People of Lot. I believe Muhammad meant the sin of legalizing it.

During End Times they won’t stay to the fundamentals in religion. They will try something new to lure the world to their religion. This means they will legalize everything unnatural known to mankind, thinking that will make their religion superior.

Drugs and alcohol will be their solution for everything and when it fails, they will talk about their problems all day with professionals making themselves weak, it will end.

People will have no choice but to go into religious centers having no other option but to pray to God where people who were atheist their whole lives go rushing in where they can’t escape the world. Where all they can do is turn to God, they become 100% convinced Christians, Muslims, or Jews. All meanwhile they are freaking out either screaming, crying, shaking where they don’t care what is happening in their local Church. They will stop immediately what they are doing whatever that may be.

People will be dying left and right. Their friends and families will be devastated, and then within hours another friend or loved one dies giving them no time to take it in. They will have no time to take it in. Meanwhile their political or religious group will keep pushing to get power rallying people to fight to the death where nothing will slow their political or religious groups leaders down.

If people knew the world is doomed and humanity will become far worse in the future, they would quit their jobs and give up. Even all these people who talk end times they speak in a positive manner in a way of saying there are looking forward to the great tribulation as if itis this exciting event to look forward to.

During End Times, people's pride will be so high they will feel they should be worshipped by all of humanity.

The people who claim everyone speaks for God when they are Christian, Jewish, Islamic, talmudic, unitarian will ruin it by outraging people when a talmudist, freemason, or unitarian ruins it. The talmudist, freemason, and unitarian will think you are intolerant, you have to learn which will make you cringe beyond belief. You will get overly discouraged, they won't in any way. Since you become angry and they aren't, you are wrong in today's world.

During End Times people who want to distort religion will do everything in their power to confuse you by claiming each verse needs years and years of studying and can be interpreted millions of ways. So, saying there is a final day yes there is one but you and I both don't understand it and the context of it.

During End Times, people will be all over the place that they cannot possibly be understood because so many different things are happening at once.

During End Times, people won't have a care in the world they will be so excited.

People will not feel respected so it will all end. It does not matter whether they trust each other or not.

During End Times, people will go rushing for the gold in the Middle East that will come from the ground to make mountains because they will believe they will get the praise they feel they deserve if they get all the gold possible. Their only goal will be to shove it in your face.

During End Times, it will not be very windy. It could be windy, but I think not at all that the winds have gone away possibly completely.

The final generation will believe they are so amazing that the whole world needs to follow them and no one else believes that the world should be run by them alone. I know it is hard to believe this, but that's how terrible the final generation will be.

Elon Musk said there is a population crisis, this all ties into End Times because there won't be enough people to take care of the elderly and pay for their retirement as Muhammad spoke of.

People will walk around so big and so pompous; you have no clue. People who were fearful of others will not be since all they can do is fight to survive.

Their panic and worry will get so out of control they can't think anymore, they will scream or cry. Their breaking point will never end, they will fall and not get up.

During End Times, people would doubt if the Prophets ever existed. These were people who would spend hours on the internet debating their existence. They have lost all hope that the Prophets no longer exist to them, or the Prophets were no different than any other man.

During End Times so many people will think they are the kings of the earth where they will try to rule forever. They will go rushing for this ability and they are in a state where they are so determined, where they feel they can do almost anything, they can accomplish it where nothing stands in their way. They will have to be stopped somehow, that's where the Angels come in.

Leading up to End Times, the public won't be able to communicate with each other.

It won't matter your title as an Imam because there will be no authority and the Imams will have no understanding of religion at all. Imam will cease to exist.

During End Times, the youth won't trust wisdom at all, they will have given up.

During End Times, a portion of the youth won't be able to do a single task at all. Either they will say "no" to a task that has to get done like showering, or they won't be able to do it. We see it now that younger and younger they are having sex and they are not ready for sex, the responsibilities.

When you hasten tasks, you cannot do them. Nobody will be able to do tasks because they will be in such haste.

No matter how bad the beat up you got, you will be fine, most people accept that they are fine and they are not hurt for life. If you get into one or more fights in a year, plenty of friends will quit on you. Most people will not tell you something traumatic that happened years ago, they get over it even if in the moment that is all they talk about.

Everyone who is not completely shattered and cannot get up will do everything they can to get the power they want. What I am trying to say is, they will forget they will die for their actions that what they do is not safe at all, they will forget it will not get them the power they want that they have to stay alive. Only some people will think that to get the power, they can die to get it. Obviously all zionists are willing to die for the power, but their goal will not be to die if you catch what I am trying to say here.

Yes, I am saying you will have to be an immense leader to make it as long as possible during End Times since all will die eventually during End Times. Nothing could prepare you for this, nor will you have any clue who will be a leader, it will be the most likely, the least likely, the one in between, you have no clue who it will be. It will be really anyone male or female, age plays no role at all unless if they are a child or an elderly.

Once someone is broken, that's it. They will either be very angry or incredibly sad that they can't get up. Meanwhile the earth is collapsing fast so no matter how people try to unite countries, it won't work. If they weren't broken, they absolutely could save their country.

The breaking point will happen quickly for everyone. It will be like a flash in a second.

As time is being sped up, things will happen so fast that no one can keep up with it. None could possibly be trained for this.

You've never seen someone's anger or their sadness before like it will be during end times. People will be immensely concerned during End Times, and they won't know what to think or do to calm someone down. This is a way of how everyone in every country will get involved.

Once the wahhabs start writing in false hadiths getting people to do false practices like banging a tree with a hammer that will not only confuse people and will also cause their mental health to fail.

During End Times people will think Muslims are trying to end the earth because there will be so much chaos that they will think the goal of Islam is to destroy everything if that means destroying each other.

Leading up to End Times, everyone will start reporting each other to authorities for everything such as one text message or one tweet. There will be concerned people, cynical people, people who want others to get help, and dumb people who report something they cannot understand all doing this at once so no one will know who a killer is, who needs help, who is prank calling the police, or who wants to get attention.

During End Times, no one will go to jail for anything. This means the worst crimes such as murder and rape will not be punished. Someone could lie and say that someone was going to murder them that's why they killed someone, no one will know if he told the truth or not meaning no one can be trusted if every they were to protect themselves.

People will be rushing to the hospitals thinking they have a mental illness.

During End Times, people will doubt every religion, you will see Christians go to Islam and Muslims go to Christianity without anything leading up to their conversion.

During End Times, all people will be so confused about what to do except for the people who follow their beliefs, they will be the successful ones in protecting themselves.

The day we think most if not all the generation has bad intent, the world will end. People will view it as a bad thing that future generations are born. Chaos will erupt.

The religious schools will collapse because only a few will take it seriously thinking it is not worth their time to learn the Bible or the Quran. Their first goal will be the worldly life which is money and learning religion won't make them rich or famous they figure.

During End Times people will think your goal for promoting religion is to break them for not believing in a certain sect or a certain faith. This is a sign of when things will get out of control.

The medication does nothing. People still will not trust someone when they take it.

During End Times, people will hear contradictory advice and will not know who to believe with material like the economy, wisdom on how to run your life, or upcoming wars. This will confuse them into not trusting anything really.

During End Times, people will not care at all about doing the right thing. They will either be neutral or sick minded.

During End Times, the youth will figure who are the imams to tell me to do that? They will just walk out. The rest will follow their own desires.

People never trust your anger in society no matter how well they know you, of course this will end.

People will feel they have to steal the nicest things thinking that without them people can break them. By having these expensive things such as a BMW, they cannot be broken, and they have achieved everything in life. They will rush to steal these items. Once they get these items, it won't be enough, and they will want more and more items to try to never be broken. It will not be enough, and then it will get out of hand.

Best friends will think the other person is trying to break them, fights will ensue.

The second people believe their religion does not have the solution to mankind, things will get out of control. This is why there will be yelling at religious centers during End Times. Inside, they don't trust the religion anymore.

The countries will have collapsed, all that will be left are the religions. They will be expected to keep humanity together.

The wahhabs will teach not right from wrong, they will teach the youth that Muslims must die because they are "enemies of Islam", the youth will obey.

Once the youth feels religion is trying to control them and won't let them be free, the Ummah will collapse.

The Antichrist will lie and tell people he will make the powerful and rulers of his false hereafter he tries to promise.

The Tree of Gharqad found in the hadiths is an eschatology that the Jews will hide behind when the Muslims fight them will be their shelter and will convince the Jews that it will bring them power. The Jews will mistake this tree for the Tree of Life. The true Jews will know that the Tree of Gharqad lies and will not bring them power, the rest will be deceived and will not get the shelter they want. The true Jews who do not go to the Tree of Gharqad will be the successful ones during End Times.

When people hear "Jesus is the son of god" or "Muhammad is Allah's final messenger" it will confuse them because they are broken, they have forgotten what they have argued about for years and years with other religions.

People will believe Islam is trying to conquer the world. All other religions will unite to try to end Islam because they feel their religion is against running the earth.

All the world will care about during End Times is the worldly life. Nothing else will matter, they won't care for their country at all.

When people are asked legitimate questions about their faith, they will think people are trying to break them. At least a portion of humanity will be that sensitive that the slightest criticism outrages them.

When all hope is lost, a portion of people will wish for the worst possible things on the earth. We are talking about plagues, homelessness, wars. What they will be doing is wishing their own suffering for good. They believe the world can endure all that and survive completely forgetting it will not survive in a state like that.

People will act like such animals you not even know. They will scream, cheer, freak out, make scenes, yell obscure things, they will talk about sick material all day long, the list goes on.

During End Times, many people will be yelling that the world is doomed scared or excited that the world is failing.

During End Times, many people will be removed from the earth, they will do things so odd. It will come from the least expected people. When they are removed, you can't tell them anything.

The false prophets will keep yelling and yelling because they are broken. At times they will make sense at times they won't.

When religion is argued in the streets it will lead to fight after fight because people are broken they can't hold it together.

During End Times, they will call the news propaganda. They won't know what news is and what is lies.

During End Times, the youth will always think they are right no matter what. This means whatever behavior they do, it will all be normalized no matter how strange it is.

During End Times, a portion of people will just simply not care that the world is collapsing in front of them. They will do nothing or rob a liquor store or something of that sort.

During End Times, every minute will be about youth. They will cut all tasks possible that need to be done.

Something I think would be the scariest of all is if the youth condemn and disavow their parents for bringing them into the world. That would no doubt be the end.

During End Times, people will do any measure to prove they are better than you, this could be working out, studying, showing off money, explaining their job.

During End Times, Muhammad and Jesus will come and say to fight to go to Paradise. People won't want to do that; they will want the "third" temple instead despite claiming to be Muslim.

Polytheism will return during End Times because people simply will not know they will be in doubt about everything.

During End Times, people will be so confused it will be chaos. All knowledge will be lost through confusion. The smartest people won't be able to trust anything they read or hear.

No one will take care of the elderly because the elderly will have too much work and because there will not be enough employees who want to work a field to help those in need because it won't pay enough.

Few are good at walking out of conversations, we all put in our best effort with this. During End Times, this will get out of control.

During End Times people will cheer saying it's not my earth so what does it matter when I destroy it. They will become such animals destroying everything in sight including buildings or to go further monuments of anything for the reason alone to destroy the earth. Nobody nor anything can stop them from doing this.

People are going to go mad during End Times wanting power.

During End Times, people will forget everything. They will be running in the streets not knowing what to do. People will get lost, and no one will know how to find them despite all the technology we have.

The agnostics will be saying "I don't know, I don't know" during End Times to everything. The atheists will say it is all a "lie".

You already know this but so many people will be yelling "we are doomed!"

During End Times, the youth will try to cancel all Caliphs for being against homosexuality and pre martial sex claiming that homosexuality and pre martial sex is part of the Muslim faith. The youth will say the Caliphs didn't understand Islam. The youth will destroy all monuments of Caliphs like Ali just like how in America people destroy statues of presidents who supported slavery.

People will think religion has no part of who they are.

The youth will be doing the most dangerous, reckless things to get attention. This will include having orgies in the streets to have it be recorded to try to get fame on the internet.

The religious leaders will just confuse and confuse the youth teaching them how to think like Andrew Tate says to "beat the matrix" instead of teaching them knowledge.

People won't feel appreciated for the work they do since stealing is now legalized. Chaos will erupt from this.

The youth won't respect any elder, they won't listen at all and will come up with their own practices claiming they are Muslim.

Everyone but the Jews, Christians, and Muslims will try to get their "third" temple. They will be led by Jesus and Muhammad where these religious groups will accept death by fighting the Final Battle. They will be successful as martyrs on the Day of Judgement.

During End Times people won’t accept that Allah is king because they will be polytheists.

During End Times, people will die in the most obscure ways possible such as walking off a building when they work construction. These were always the bosses who yelled at you when you made the slightest mistake. They won’t even be able to think. If they fell off a building and lived with barely any injury, they would either yell at you for showing concern or they will try to walk it off either way they will make no sense at all. If they are injured, they won’t even think about going to the hospital.

During End Times, nothing will be good enough, people will keep demanding more and more. They won’t appreciate anything if that means getting to go to Puerto Rico on a trip.

They will despise every practice during End Times such as fasting. They will protest it in some way, probably through social media.

During End Times people will believe they will not die.

During End Times people will do anything to be perfect, this includes having orgies on the streets.

People during End Times will believe they can do whatever they want. They will die left and right.

The Muslims during End Times will start banning most history books claiming they are “not Islamic” so they get rid of them. I don’t think the wahhabs will be responsible for this if at most a small degree of it, the wahhabs distort the faith, not ban historical books. This one I am “half” sure of.

Because all people will care about their success, they will forget how necessary religion is. They will quit religion. They will want the worldly life, fortune, praise that they won’t find in Islam, only a small portion make good money off religion and that is a very difficult job to do. The ones who will stay religious will have speakers that ruin religion for narrative.

Once people’s dreams are crushed and everything is being destroyed around them, that will be it.

Some people during End Times will do great, heroic things, but they will be small in numbers. To prevent End Times, it would take many of them, the numbers will be nowhere near be enough. Most of the ones who do heroic things will die quickly after doing something heroic. People are going to die very quickly during End Times except for those who truly have stood up to the test of end times.

Many people are going to be too worried about what others think for fear of what will happen during End Times so they will not give it at all, they will try to avoid conversations about the republican democratic divide. They will either be pushed into talking about it or not talk about it at all.

All people during End Times will want to obtain the earth, anyone who stands in their way will be taken down by them. If they see something they view as unfair, a serious fight will break out.

What will happen is the youth will feel religion doesn't define them and will leave it in droves despite the scholars showing that they have given the youth all the material needed to know Islam is the truth.

When people take too much from the world, the world ends. This is one of God's laws of life. Because the public doesn't think it is possible that God has laws, they forget, and they keep taking and taking to the point it will have to end.

During End Times, many people won't even pray to God because they are so worried watching the world collapse. They forget that they have to pray, and other ones will not pray because they have given up for good.

During End Times, all people will want the best of the best but will do the worst of the worst to achieve it. They will think everything on the earth belongs to them and they will believe you stand in their way. When they cheer getting something like stealing a designer purse, they will go on to the next thing after cheering for a while. Picture excitement and then rush, fight in a never-ending cycle.

During end times so many people will claim to be a false deity that is the greatest.

No matter how much knowledge someone has on the earth, during End Times all people will be convinced of things that are not true. People who denied "climate change" their whole life will now believe it to be a fact as an example.

The delusion will get out of control, people will claim they can fly, they don't have to sleep, they can run as fast as a cheetah. They will try doing this and fail each time but will try it again anyway.

The elites will release every single truth to life they know during End Times that they have hidden outside of the fact that the Biblical stories took place in Arabia.

During End Times the youth will have ideas that are so crazy that could never possibly work where people work where people would worry senseless for them. But the youth won't listen, and no one will stop them from trying these insane ideas like radical feminism. There are many more that I can't think of.

People will give up trying to accomplish anything thinking everything has been done except for trying to get power during End Times, that will be their only focus.

Muslims will believe Islam is the cause for why their countries are failing, they will be leaving Islam in masses for something "new". They won't listen to the Imams who tell them that the countries failing is not caused by Islam.

People will be stressed out of their minds they won't know what to do.

So many people during End Times are not going to understand why people are outraged and scared during End Times thinking something else set them off like the fact they didn't get the job they wanted, their sports team lost, or the car they wanted having no clue what is going on.

The talmudists will keep pushing and pushing their way into Lebanon trying to reach Syria, the people of Lebanon will have to hold them back at all costs since the talmudists won't stop. They will have to unite as best as possible meanwhile each religion and sect is becoming divided into more sects.

Figuring that nothing else matters, many people will chase any sort of thrill they could possibly get acting like such animals.

People will be crying so much no one knows what to do, nothing will fix their concern for the earth.

Those who were law abiding on this earth will have to break whatever law need be in order to survive. Some will not be willing to do so out of love for their country.

In the West, when you are angry you are wrong by default. Think of what will happen during End Times where most people are angry the rest are depressed beyond words?

All countries, all empires end at some point. Anyone can conclude the world will end someday from it.

What the youth will do during End Times as example is redefine what the purpose of things are for. For instance, college is for studying, they will say college is for protesting and partying. Another example is a job is for money; they will say a job is for getting clout. Another example is that a car is for driving, they will say a car is for reckless driving. This will get out of hand; they will get everything wrong.

Muhammad said time will be accelerated during End Times. It is not metaphorical where so much is happening at once life happens so quickly. It is literal that time will be sped up the days will go much faster. Because things are happening so quick during End Times, no one will know that Islam is correct and why Islam is correct and not Christianity.

When the wahhabs keep taking things away from those who are under their control, they will forget that their lives matter. What it will do is depress them so much that they don't even want to be human where they become a robot.

Leading up to End Times, people will become so deep in what they believe which is incorrect they will start overthinking religion believing things are happening on the earth that are not. They will come up with wild, unbelievable theories that could not possibly be true and are backed by no such evidence.

During End Times, people will think they have powers and abilities that they do not possess. This is not just believing they can fly. This is believing that they can make the ocean turn green or believing that they can do sorcery or magic like in a Sci Fi movie. This will be widespread with most many people attempting this, all will fail trying this.

Many are going to lose their sanity during End Times so they will act so strangely where they are unrecognizable.

Anything you see in movies or music videos will be reenacted by many during End Times.

During End Times, people will do anything for their cause this means any scale, anything they can do to "further" it.

During End Times, the moon will be as bright as the sun.

I don't know how many forest fires there will be. I would wager not too many.

During End Times, all planes will be shut down. They will be too hectic to take flight.

People will let everything out during End Times, they will say everything they think and feel. This will cause chaos because everyone is overwhelmed.

During End Times, people will go based on what social media influencers do on social media and not by what Scripture says.

There will be a lot of friendly fire. No one will know what to do when it happens.

Most books will be thrown out because people won't want to feel stigmatized being looked down on as less. They will turn against their own political party and religion.

During End Times, there will be so much chaos in one country alone they will not be able to put any thought into what is happening in the Middle East. Their only focus will be their own country.

The public will yell "unify, unify!" When we say "divide, divide", they will accuse us of creating other sects of Islam to try to destroy the Ummah.

The elite leaders will say that everything is fine, and that "peace" will come. They will do everything to convince the public that there is nothing to be concerned about.

The ones at the bottom and the freemasons will be pinned against the wahhabs during End Times. The elites at the top will keep pushing it. Ironically, the two have the same goals, but will kill each other or will fight in the streets with each other.

People will be dying left and right from taking medications and drinking alcohol at the same time.

If much of the men aren't confident, who will stand up? Will the women be expected to save the world? What I am outlining is that during End Times, both men and women have to do everything they can to make it through it. Both men and women may have to work together to the best of their ability in order to survive.

Leading up to End Times, people will keep inviting themselves to anything and everything. They won't even ask; they will just take or invite themselves to something.

People will be reacting so fast to making decisions they won't think rationally or critically.

People will want to try something new; it just won't work in any way.

Because all people will care about their status, they won't be ready for warfare anymore. Which means many will not be ready for End Times.

People will enter a state of shock, over and over again in a cycle.

We have no clue who the peaceful breeze will wipe away or the scale of how many believers will be wiped away by it. I would think many citizens in Palestine, Syria, Lebanon, and Egyptian are going to have to fight the talmudists in the final battle.

No one will be able to focus so they will not be able to recite Quran verses anyways.

The imams will put out falsehood after falsehood about Islam's history when teaching what they think is Islam so the religion will fall apart.

What the Antichrist will do is promising people power citing the false gospel. Get ready for this.

The Antichrist will claim he is speaking of Quran verses that we know do not exist. The Antichrist will do this to deceive the public.

The Antichrist will go to great lengths to convince the public that he knows more about religion then them. The Antichrist is going to say things that at times the believers pick up on where the Antichrist is not making sense with religion.

The elites will get rid of morality by way of running the media and education system so most people will not know right from wrong during End Times.

During End Times, the religious leaders will scorn others for not accepting word for word how they understand Scripture. The religious leaders will insist they will fix it not realizing they cannot fix it. What they will resort to is hate and anger amongst each other.

During End Times, people will say that the teachings in Scripture are not needed, they will walk out of the religious centers.

What will happen during End Times is that all countries will lose. This means protests will be everywhere because for instance the zionists are expecting us Muslims to lose, not their country because the zionists won't see it coming, chaos will break in their country.

During End Times, historical books written on the Middle East will be labeled "radical islam."

What could happen is countries history like Qatar will be revealed to the public causing chaos to break because the citizens no longer support the government.

The public will steal clothing and compete to dress a certain way that would impress as many people as they can.

One thing that could happen which cannot be ruled out, every community could fail where no community functions, this would be far worse than what

I list here. What End Times is will not be this, in no way am I saying End Times will be less than what I have explained.

Many people will be in such a state of shock that they cannot go on the internet that their only focus will be getting it back. They will scream and riot because of it.

A generation will come that will believe religion is for their own personal cause and not Allah's. This means they will believe Islam means followers service them.

People will deny all Prophet and believe in one "god", or they will believe all world religions and try to unit them. I think both will happen where the second thing that happens will happen far more.

Because they were not tested, they were not ready for End Times. Everything came to them free and easy.

One reason why people will compete to decorate the Mosques is to try to unite the world.

During End Times, all people will doubt everything ever written. They may even doubt what is recorded.

The ones who want to be tolerant of all beliefs are going to accept all world religions as one to get no criticism for others not understanding what that will do.

Since those who have knowledge will be taken away, that means none can teach religion and wisdom leaving the world with nothing.

Entitlement will get out of control during End Times.

Prophet Isa will tell Christians to become Muslim during End Times.

The Antichrist will confuse Christians into thinking that Prophet Isa is a "false prophet."

During End Times, people will want the best experience at all costs. They will be cheering as the world collapses around them.

During End Times, the sauds will open Mecca to all people of all religions.

The public will blame Islam because Islam will not do what the public wants all other religions will do what the public wants. This is very important.

Those who know so little about religion will be the most confused during End Times having no clue what is going on and what to do.

Because most people won't have a spine in the future, the world will end.

During End Times, the Muslims will believe there is a Jewish-Christian alliance trying to destroy the Islamic faith.

The Antichrist may claim to be Allah and say to the Jews and Christians the verse in the Quran of 29:46 to distort the public into thinking that he being the Antichrist is universal. What I believe will happen is the Antichrist will say that verse and then say nothing afterwards to test the public to see if they will worship him.

It’s not that Muslims are going to doubt Islam, it’s that they will walk out of Mosques. The alternative being that they forget religion, this could happen because they have given up on religion, they forget which is correct. I think it will happen after they walk out of Mosques.

Prophet Elijah will return during End Times.

Once the hadiths are denied, the public will say such horrible things about Prophet Muhammad and his companions.

Since the leaders now run the religious centers, they will distort the youth by teaching them the worst ideas possible. The elites will be liable for such ideas for the youth who will follow what the elites tell them to believe.

Each religious community will believe they are not treated equally in the country they are in, so they will clash amongst each other thinking the other religious communities are causing it.

Pride during End Times will be to an extent the world has never witnessed.

I don’t think there will be tornadoes during End Times. A few of them at most.

At high schools in America, the standards are being lowered to pass, that indicates that the youth will understand Scripture to a much lower degree than previous generations. The youth may not be able to understand Scripture at all. The environment is being set up for End Times.

Once the hadiths are denied, the public will say such horrible things about Muhammad and his companions during End Times.

The world will become the opposite of the Islamic faith, once the world is the opposite of the Islamic faith, the religion will be denied by the public.

If the public aren’t informed on End Times since they haven’t read the Bible or the Quran, polytheism will return always through those who know almost nothing about religion since they will come up with something different as to why the world is ending because they didn’t read the sources in the hadiths.

Because everyone's false "testimony" of seeing Prophets Jesus and Muhammad will be made valid as some sort of fact by most of the public during End Times, it will invalidate actual testimonies of people who saw Jesus. This is not only because the people who claim to see Jesus are wrong but more importantly because the ones who claim to see Jesus during End Times that are wrong will bring ideas to religion that are the worst mankind has ever seen.

During End Times, you will see those who spoke against Muslims ever living in Europe such as groups like Britain first whatever it is in the future work with the wahhab leaders as a form of "unity" making it seem "historic" that both Britain first and the wahhabs can get along. I don't know what scale this will be. It could be minor with a few groups like Britain first, or major with many groups.

What could happen is countries such as Britian and the Netherlands elite leaders with their militaries could wage war against each other during End Times despite being allies in NATO where the two countries will fight one another no longer as allies trying to get their "third" temple thinking the other country prevents them from getting it. This would be catastrophic. I am not sure if it will happen or not.

The more anti-psychotic medications, the more street drugs, the more alcohol, the Quran will not work for the person reading the Quran.

What is going to happen is many in the public will cheer as their country is collapsing, it will get worse and worse to the point they no longer want to wreck their country and end out miserable from it.

The more chaos, the conflicts will get worse.

What Generation Z doesn't realize is that one school of thought has to be applied into law. Generation Z want everyone to be able to practice anything. What I believe will happen is they will protest Islamic countries and end Sharia Law because they won't want religious law. They will want a "law" that they themselves have come up with that could not possibly work.

What could happen is that religious texts interpretations could be read "ongoing", that will ruin the Abrahamic faiths.

The elites will try to claim that the Bible speaks of fighting a war against Islam. The wahhabs will claim that they are under attack for their ideology.

I believe there will be so many ways the elites will try to influence the public during End Times. It will be done one after another when one method they try doesn't work. It will happen fast for each one tried.

All groups, all ideologies will fail on the Day of Judgement. Every single group except the believers who will have been gone from the breeze.

During End Times, people will want to be superior in every way. What they will do is start wanting things that will destroy countries with ideas that can never work.

The elites will flood everything that goes against Islam in Muslim countries.

What will happen is the sects will divide again and again because Muslims will not adhere to Sunni-Shia anymore thinking something “new” will fix the Ummah.

The elites will flood every false belief they have about Scripture to try to confuse or try to unite the public during End Times.

The more religion other religious people see, the more competition. That means each religion will have more invested followers trying to make their religion superior. This will cause a clash of some sort leading up to End Times.

During End Times, the youth will try to have their voice always heard and make attempt after attempt to get their voice heard as far as possible to as many people as possible.

This is very scary, what will happen is the elites will throw most of the elites and their minions under the bus claiming they work with foreign countries where they will toss these elites and their minions out to the public for the public to kill them, this means a small portion of elites will get many elites and their minions killed when the public blames them for their countries collapsing. All while this is going on, everything is getting out to the public for the public to know why the elites do this.

During End Times, charity may end on the reason alone it will not give people any fame being a charitable person. Or there may be no reason to give in charity since there will be an abundance of wealth.

During End Times, the public will claim more and more titles claiming to be higher and higher titles such as claiming to be a false messiah or a false prophet along with claiming to be the CEO of Microsoft.

During End Times, Muslims will walk out of religious centers one reason being they won’t tolerate the disrespect they get from around the world when the Muslims are trying to invite them to the faith.

Many false prophets will emerge during End Times because people will go to any extent to try to influence the public.

A portion up to many people will do anything to make their faith be the faith that runs a country during End Times. People will say that’s “part of their religion” not understanding what is going on.

During End Times, the world will be so different that the public will have a “new” understanding of religion that has never been known to mankind. The public will think all previous generations have religion wrong.

When I say each religious person in all religion will try everything, I mean they will try anything done in the past that had any sort of results to get people of other faiths upset or angry. They will even try things that didn’t work in the past.

During End Times, many people will be all over the place between condemning each religion and other groups. They will speak against so many groups and religions that they won’t make sense.

During End Times, there will be lands that people believe give such high status they will chase it where they all go rushing at it.

What may happen is the wahhabs may try to unify the wahhab countries such as Pakistan, Afghanistan, India, and Bangladesh to start a war in India, China, or Iran.

The public will no longer interpret Scripture as literal during End Times, this will be catastrophic as it will confuse the public.

During End Times, every terminology will be used wrong. For example, someone will say they were "berated" when someone said hello to them.

During End Times, the hadiths will be deemed “delusional” by the saud’s and will be rejected by the public.

During End Times, many people will do things that are off thinking it will resolve their problems.

What I think will happen during End Times is that every religion the world has will open the doors to every belief possible, that includes beliefs that go against God’s laws. This will be catastrophic.

What will probably happen leading up to End Times is that the public will be confused as to what they are going up against and what they are protesting for. There will be so much different activism going on.

What may happen is the worldly life may be built up to an extent that noy many will see the world collapsing during that time because it is seen as highly unlikely by the public.

To try to deny the Abrahamic faiths, people in the public will claim they are polytheists.

When the elites at the top get hurt mentally as it has already begun, chaos will break.

The public and the wahhabs will try their best to separate Islam from the Bible to make it seem as if the only Prophet in Islam is Prophet Muhammad and the only Scripture revealed in Islam is the Quran.

During End Times, the ones who believe they know Scripture the best will be the ones who do not understand Scripture at a basic level.

Crime will go up in the future, religion will be blamed in America because America is called a “christian nation” by the public.

During End Times, Sharia Law will not be recognizable.

There will be landslides before the world ends.

There will be 30 antichrists who lie against Allah and Muhammad.

The youth will be all over the place with their actions and speech.

The elites will turn many words’ terminology into something it is not in any way leading up to End Times. This will confuse the public and their speech.

The youth will be all over the place with their actions and speech.

A portion of the youth will do things at random during End Times.

There will be people during End Times who will say they have it correct that the world is ending the way they described when they have it all wrong as to how and why the world is ending. They will keep going on and on thinking they will get what they want when they will not.

Many groups of people will keep trying to get attention from the public during End Times. They will use any means they can come up with to do so.

The elites will make higher and higher claims to the public about their “third” temple that they think they will get. The public will get more outrageous after every so many claims the elites put out.

During End Times, the youth will distort religion to the highest extent possible because religion will not give them the fame and attention that they are looking for thinking it will bring it to them.

What I think will happen is that the wahhabs who run the saudi government will blame the countries around them along with the protestors in their country. This will result in sauds leaving wahhabism and splitting from it in masses. The saudi elites will have no direction, few of their wahhabs will support them.

The public will try to unite world religions during End Times saying Prophet Isa was crucified because of how the Quran says it was made to appear to the Jews of Palestine to say, “Christianity is also correct.”

When the Mosques are decorated, the youth will go from one thing to the next swiftly. They will be all over the place.

The public will try to make a bigger statement each time they can during End Times, acting more like animals.

During End Times, you can expect competition after competition that gets more competitive each time to the point the public starts breaking all rules of competition.

What will happen leading up to End Times is that when a religious discussion is brought up between two people, the conversation will resort back to insults of one another’s faiths. This means there will be no dialogue possible between each religion.

During End Times, the elites and their minions will have live streams through social media to teach others about their wahhabism for instance. Those who were taught wahhabism, catholicism, talmudism will teach those they are friends with on social media.

Many seas will be set on fire during End Times.

Muslims fight a people who wear shoes of hair with small eyes and broad snub noses.

Someone from South Arabia will come and drive people out with his stick.

The Final Day will take place on a Friday.

People will murder for the gold mountains found in the Middle East during End Times.

During End Times, much of the public will try to have their voice be the loudest of anyone else. They will try to yell louder than the person who yelled before them.

What may happen during End Times is one group will fight another group in the streets, then go to another group to fight them in an endless cycle.

The public will be talking about their beliefs so much where it is almost all they talk about yelling it, it will be chaotic.

During End Times, the Muslim public will be labeled “extremists” because of the fake hadiths the wahhab leaders put out. I am not sure to what extent the public who are Islamic will be labeled “extremist.”

During End Times, the public in many countries will blame the religious centers.

During End Times, the public will compete for a higher and higher status.

During End Times, those who are wrong will be surer of what they do, it will increase higher each event. I cannot stress this enough.

During End Times, there will be no understanding of what a Jew, Christian, or Muslim is. The people who claim to be Jew, Christian, or Muslim will be something unrecognizable.

Because the public will not have religious teachers during End Times, the public will come up with things at random on what they think religion is. The public in today’s world needs religious teachers.

During End Times, there most likely will be eschatology events that happen that are not found in Scripture. This means none will know how to respond to them. This will be a serious event during End Times.

The public will be stressed out of control during End Times because the media will push as much deep material as possible.

The statements people will try to make will be higher and higher during End Times.

There will be a portion of the public who will be cheering on End Times thinking it is some sort of show that they share with their friends in amazement having no clue what is going on.

During End Times, every ideology will be added to religion. This will destroy religion by distorting religion completely.

During End Times, a portion of the younger generations will ask the religious leaders why they think their religious beliefs are correct sarcastically.

During End Times, the public won’t understand concepts. This means they won’t be credible sources for events. Keep in mind that the public has smartphones, the public won’t be credible to explain an event that happened as if it is difficult to do.

Because there will be so much chaos during End Times, the public will not be trusted since the public will keep slandering each other protesting their countries.

The hospitals will be full during End Times. The hospital nurses and doctors will be required to turn those who try to go into their hospitals away.

What may happen during End Times is that Allah's name will no longer be used on the earth before End Times begins. This is found in a hadith.

Prophet Isa will break the cross, kill the swine, and end the jizya tax.

During End Times, the "thin legged man" from Ethiopia will destroy the Kaaba.

During End Times, the public will just take anything on the shelves with no thought put into it at all.

The Antichrist will tell the public he will give them a higher status, the next time he talks about giving them a higher status, he will claim something bigger than that for the public.

The public that is religious will say the worst things possible about the other person's holy book in the public during End Times.

During End Times, young adults will add their groups from their colleges and social media to religion. This will contribute to distorting religion.

During End Times, there will be accusations coming from each religious person accusing people of other religions that they are "lying" against the religious beliefs they have.

Leading up to End Times, the public will have many problems. The public will blame a religion that is different from theirs for what is happening in the public.

During End Times, the Antichrist will confuse the public by saying many things that the Antichrist says is in Scripture that isn't in Scripture.

During End Times, it will be very hot regardless of the season.

During End Times, there may or may not be much rain.

During End Times, the public will have no idea which religious centers will survive and which ones won't in most countries. Most of the religious centers will collapse. Religious denominations in Islam, Christianity, Jewish will not further towards if the religious center will succeed during End Times.

Because there will be so many wahhabs and salafis that you will then be deemed one by the public during End Times. This is devastating.

During End Times, the public will be told by their leaders that it is another country's fault for why their country is failing. The public will believe it.

During End Times, the reason could be as to why there will be 50 women for one man could be because most men won't be getting with many women.

Leading up to End Times, much of the world will go further towards what they view is "logic" and further away from God's laws.

During End Times, there will be many talks about political matters.

Leading up to End Times, the public's understanding of "logic" will be used against each other You will hear more often "by that logic." Religions will be competing over this "logic" concept. That doesn't mean results will be there.

During End Times, there will be many who claim to be Monotheists but are polytheists because they have distorted their religious beliefs so much by adding to their religious beliefs.

The Mahdi will emerge somewhere between Northern Lebanon and Southern Syria. The Mahdi will be the leader of the earth for seven years.

The younger generations will be spending more time on social media platforms listening to the social media influencers they follow. This means over time they will forget more of the Quran.

The social media influencers will create a generation that will rewrite religion to the point the younger generations will not have one thing correct about religion because they will follow those who distort religion.

During End Times, the Muslims who moved to today's first world countries won't be prepared for End Times. Their imams aren't actual imams, they are just random wahhabs.

During End Times, eschatology will be something far from what it was taught historically. The public will not understand eschatology.

Prophet Isa will return in Damascus Syria and will be around the area in Lebanon during End Times.

During End Times, you will see massive arguments outside with the Democrats arguing with other Democrats on how their political party is run in America. The same will go for conservatives in America. This will also happen frequently in many of today's first world countries.

During End Times, several liberal, conservative etc. groups will steal from many different locations believing that will make their group of a higher rank than the other ones.

During End Times, most if not all religious practices will be left by the public. The public will believe there are religious practices for them outside of what is found in the Bible, Quran, and hadiths.

Leading up to End Times, the social media influencers will use serious insults to people of other ideologies. It will go back and forth between two social media influencers and their followers.

During End Times, Prophet Isa will end all false beliefs from the earth.

Leading up to End Times, you will see the public go further with their beliefs and will spend more time researching why they believe the party whatever it be is wrong to them. You can expect big arguments.

What I believe will happen is practices found in reach religion will go further because the religious public wants to believe they are superior to people of other religions. This will distort each religion.

During End Times, the public will claim almost anything in the public as their own. The public will take more and more.

Leading up to End Times, many in the public will get lazier over time.

Leading up to End Times, there will be less of a civil behavior from the public thinking it will get them fame.

I had initially thought the wahhabs would ban just about everything leading up to End Times, I believe the opposite now where the wahhabs will claim just about everything as part of their wahhab beliefs in their wahhab countries.

During End Times, a portion of the public will be very jealous of the rich and famous.

During End Times, you will see famous figures explain to their fanbase why other famous figures are horrible people when these famous figures themselves are horrible people. Their fanbases will cheer with them.

Leading up to End Times, the public will not see their countries as failing, they will see their countries as thriving.

During End Times, the public won’t believe a different religion other than theirs is right because so much that is false that is claimed as part of other religions will have been treated as part of someone else’s religion by the public.

Leading up to End Times, social media will put out many beliefs that appear as though they are beliefs to run a country, however the beliefs won’t work. Social media will have disguised the beliefs on it.

During End Times, there will be several reports on the media that are reported all wrong.

During End Times, a generation will come that will destroy many things they find. They will do this to believe they are much smarter than previous generations.

Taylor Swift's tour she had recently broke the record for concert attendance in the world. This relates to End Times because the public goes to events no matter what level technology plays in our day-to-day lives. Since events are getting bigger, that means during End Times, there will be events going on that are huge.

During End Times, so much will be happening there will be many who don't know what is going on.

Leading up to End Times, you will see more religion gradually from the public.

Leading up to End Times, the public will invest more in their beliefs.

During End Times, the ones who teach religion who push far away from literal interpretation of Scripture will get the most following.

Leading up to End Times, the wahhabs will keep adding hadiths thinking it will raise their status.

The religious centers will be decorated during End Times, the public will claim all property.

The elites and their pawns will keep doing what their public wants because the elites and their pawns believe that their public will start a protest that will reach worldwide through social media. That is why the elites and their pawns keep ruining their names such as catholicism, freemasonry etc. Their groups don't have leadership of any kind.

It would be surprising if Reform Judaism, Catholicism, Protestant Christianity and many religious denominations get fixed and are dominant during End Times. I don't believe this at all. I have written out that certain religious centers and certain communities will be victors during End Times. It will not be a religious denominations as a whole, what I have written previously is the opposite of this.

During End Times, the youth will claim something that is halal is haram because they do not want it as part of their religion.

Leading up to End Times, terminology will be misused at a high extent. Also, terminology will be understood far differently.

Because the public will want the world to be something "new", the public will try to make the world unrecognizable with "logic". This extends to Islam where Islam will not be recognizable.

What could happen during End Times is that the polytheists will keep adding to false gods much like in Sumeria where there were thousands of false gods by the time Sumeria had ended. This will cause division amongst the polytheists which will distort polytheism worldwide. This is all during the catholics and wahhabs are distorting their beliefs during End Times.

Leading up to End Times, there will be so much build up through social media where there will be so many conversations on it that will be so much anticipation by the public of events that will happen.

Countries will evolve, that means protests will be for countries that would be far different from the Straight Path in Abrahamic religions. This is one of the main reasons why End Times will happen.

Most in today's first world countries only focus one their own countries when they say the world is ending. The public has no clue how the world will end. The public comes up with why the world will end, not how the world will end.

Leading up to End Times, the public will have problems to the point where they will wonder if religion is the cause of their problems. This will be the beginning of when things will get out of control on the earth.

The zakat may not be paid leading up to End Times.

The news stations during End Times will mislead the public with false articles. This will divide people over what they heard from different sources.

Leading up to End Times, the public may tell the religious leaders that they don't know how to teach religion, this will cause problems and will make many quit their jobs in religion.

The elites have shown they cannot plan Ukraine. This means that Ukraine will either collapse bad or will enter a serious war with Russia where Ukraine falls apart and Russia advances into Europe during End Times. I believe the country will collapse bad. I don't know if Russia will advance into Ukraine. Belarus is an ally with Russia, so Russia will advance further from both Belarus and Ukraine.

I am not certain if Russia will advance into Europe to fight a serious war with Germany, Britain, and France during End Times. I believe Russia will advance into Europe planning to fight a serious war.

Leading up to End Times, the wahhabs will ruin religion because each wahhab will be taught something different when the wahhab leaders begin adding hadiths.

Leading up to End Times, the wahhabs will label people "disbelievers" for not believing in what their wahhab leaders add to their wahhab beliefs. This could cause chaos in Muslim countries, and many will leave Islam left and right. If it doesn't cause chaos, it will distort Islam to the point it isn't recognizable.

Leading up to End Times, the public is going to think people who sell products to them are joking around and not actually selling the products to them because theft will be at a high rate.

During End Times, the hadiths will be rejected since the wahhab leaders will keep adding many false hadiths.

Leading up to End Times, part of the public will add to their religious beliefs to try to claim someone else's religious beliefs are incorrect. This will be a part of the reason why religion will be distorted during End Times.

Leading up to End Times, concerts will get vulgar with famous singers saying awful things about celebrities they don't like. The fans will chant along with the famous singer at the concerts and will record it and put it on their social media.

Leading up to End Times, the public will sign paperwork where it is not abided to where either the one who issues the paperwork or the one who signs the paperwork doesn't go by the paperwork they had signed.

Leading up to End Times, one group will blame another group for their country failing. 7 to 10 different groups will blame a group that is not theirs.

During End Times, Gog and Magog will come back from hiding.

Leading up to End Times, the public will go to many protests because their friends will go to them. The protests will be promoted even more to the public on social media. This means the protests will be even bigger.

Leading up to End Times, a lot of people in the public who are beginning at religion will post on the internet material that is incorrect about religion because they are at a beginner's level in religion. This has nothing to do with the wahhabs producing false hadiths.

There will be many different media outlets on during End Times. This will confuse the public having TV sources, smartphone sources, computers, their friends' smartphones etc. of different media outlets. There will be part of the public that won't be focused on one media source while many are going off.

Once the wahhabs realize they cannot run their countries the way they want, they will start destroying the countries they created by producing false hadiths in masses.

During End Times, what the public will happen is that the Muslims want to run all Europe. What will happen is the wahhabs will destroy Europe.

Leading up to End Times, the generations will be prideful.

Leading up to End Times, the zionists will make some big decisions that do not make sense that will do serious damage to their country along with their saudi country. This includes during End Times as well.

If the wahhab countries leave what they believe is Sharia Law for a "new" set of laws for their countries or the wahhabs mess up what they believe is Sharia Law badly, that will do serious damage to their countries. We aren't sure if the wahhabs will do that or not leading up to End Times.

In the saudi country, the Angels and the Prophets such as Prophet Muhammad will work with men and women who will leave wahhabism and try to fix Arabia during End Times. There will be some in the saudi country that the Angels and the Prophets will work with, there won't be many in the saudi country that the Angels and the Prophets will work with in Arabia. The wahhabs leaders will not know who the Angels and the Prophets work with in their saudi country.

With theft going up in California, the crowd that is stealing in California in 2024 would steal during End Times.

During End Times, in Europe, there will not be a Muslim vs Christian battle. The wahhabs will split into different sects and many groups such as conservatives, democrats, Christians, wahhabs, hindus will protest on the streets.

Many in the public believe it will be all other religions against Islam during End Times. As I have written out, I don't believe that at all. I do believe it will be the zionists vs. the Muslims in areas such as Egypt, Lebanon, and Palestine.

Leading up to End Times, there may be countries where many in the public may protest their jobs where the wages are too low to work at.

Leading up to End Times, many Churches worldwide are going to leave many practices that are taught in Christianity. The Churches will become unrecognizable over time from all the practices the Church left.

During End Times, there will be some zionists who abandon their country and convert to Christianity or Islam when they see that Prophet Isa is the Messiah.

Leading up to End Times, once the wahhabs start adding and adding to religion, Islamic knowledge will disappear.

During End Times, many Muslims will reject the hadiths because they want to compete with other religions.

The social media influencers, the catholic leaders, the talmudist leaders, and the wahhab leaders may unite to try to destroy all Abrahamic religions. This would be different from the catholic leaders, talmudist leaders, and the wahhab leaders destroying their beliefs separately.

During End Times, four Angels that are at the Euphrates River will be sent out during End Times.

Leading up to End Times, the wahhabs will have social media influencers that are nowhere near religious. Much of the public will be led by them.

During End Times, the public will keep thinking today's first world countries will have a "revival" and will be prosperous. What will happen is the opposite where several of their countries will collapse.

Leading up to End Times, as several of today's first world countries are failing, you will see many people on the left or the right say, "you don't know what you are talking about, you are a fool."

Leading up to End Times, many people will put horrendous material on the internet to insult others at a high amount.

During End Times, the younger generations and several others will believe they own everything they see.

Leading up to End Times, European countries such as Portugal, Spain, and Greece will go bankrupt.

During End Times, several countries governments won't know what they are doing. When the left and the right clash in a country, it will be unfortunate.

Not many people are going to steal during End Times since many stores are closing down. What I believe will happen is there will be many riots instead of many instances of shoplifting.

During End Times, there will be Christians who will mistake Prophet Muhammad thinking he is Christ and will follow Prophet Muhammad when Prophet Muhammad comes down from the Heavens.

During End Times, only part of the Book of Revelation will apply.

Leading up to End Times, many countries leaders will be the worst at finance.

During End Times, the wahhabs will get their "new wahhabism" and it will be exported worldwide. This also means that the "new wahhabism" will be imported on social media from countries such as Germany into wahhab countries such as UAE and Qatar where their younger generations will be part of the "new wahhabism" that was "imported" from Germany.

During End Times, the wahhab leaders will think that by distorting religion, it will make them dominant in countries such as Germany, the opposite will occur.

During End Times, the younger generations will want to lead their religion by trying to be religious leaders themselves.

During End Times, the younger generations are going to yell, talk over people etc.

During End Times, many citizens in today's first world countries will have the most absurd reasons why they are protesting citing Bible or Quran verses where they cite the Bible or Quran incorrectly.

During End Times, the wahhabs focus will be on running wahhabism. The wahhabs will not care if masses of Muslims are leaving Islam in countries such as Palestine, Lebanon, Syria, Iraq, and Yemen as long as their countries are the mass population in whatever religion they claim such as Judaism, Christianity, or Islam. Their goal will solely be the dominant and in the process, they will distort religion with their ideas. I don't believe they will intentionally distort religion for their own beliefs. Also, Iran will not care. Iran will not want a Shia dominant Middle East where they will try to do so. Russia nor China will not care if the people of Palestine, Lebanon, Syria, Iraq, and Yemen are leaving Islam in masses.

The elites and their pawns believe they are building up social media. The elites and their pawns may be destroying social media. If the elites and their pawns are destroying social media, they won't believe it. If social media is destroyed, then social media will be wasted.

Leading up to End Times, the fake hadiths that the wahhabs put out will be widespread on social media.

During End Times, the younger generations will upload to social media when they decorate religious centers to try to boast on social media.

At times, the public does not believe what is happening in their countries. There may be several in the public who do not believe what is happening during End Times.

During End Times, the Synagogue of Satan in the Book of Revelation may be a leader of a wahhab country.

During End Times, because of this "new" religion will not be recognizable anymore. This "new" religion will have barely anything to do with Abrahamic religions.

Much of the public will not see End Times coming because social media will be loaded with religion on it.

During End Times, there will be people in the public who keep adding to wahhabism with the fake hadiths. The fake hadiths will contain beliefs that have no comparison to the hadiths of the Sunnah.

During End Times, social media will be used as the most used source of information.

Leading up to End Times, the social media influencers will be the worst sources to be cited for what the social media influencers put out.

During End Times, many countries that once had a high population of Christians are going to be different than they once were so the religions in the countries will be different than they once were in them.

During End Times, part of the public in Arabia will become polytheists because of events that are happening during End Times.

During End Times, the public will go based on the wahhab leaders over the Quran and hadiths. This means the Quran and the hadiths won't be applied because the wahhab leaders will represent wahhabism and not the Quran and the hadiths.

Since the public will go based on the wahhab leaders, this is a reason as to why the Quran and the hadiths will be forgotten overtime during End Times.

During End Times, the younger generations will keep sharing the false hadiths on social media platforms, the false hadiths will be all over social media.

Ana Kasparian, a social media commentator no longer is part of the left in America. Ana left because the direction the left is going in is not something she wants to be a part of. This ties in to End Times where the public's beliefs will be terrible.

During End Times, the younger generations will claim to be the most religious, the younger generations will be the furthest from what religion has been.

Leading up to End Times, many of the celebrities and social media influencers are going to keep adding themselves left and right to Christianity and wahhabism. This will be a big deal for much of the public.

During End Times, the public will believe they are building up their religious centers, in reality, the public will want to be the loudest voice in the public at their religious centers.

Because there will be no teachers of the Quran and religion is being distorted by social media, the verses of the Quran will be forgotten during End Times.

Each generation is moving further away from religion in place of something that is unrecognizable. An example is Mike Rashid King who is a social media influencer that is selling clothing with "god body" written on it. The rapper Eminem called himself "rap god". A rapper Tom MacDonald who put out a song called "god mode". A famous YouTuber and Orthodox priest called OrthodoxEthos on Ruslan KD's social media podcast said "man might become god" in 2024. Mike Tyson on Logan Paul's podcast said he was "you are him" to say he was equal to God in his beliefs in 2024.

RuslanKD known as "bless god studios" on YouTube is an example of a social media influencer who is distorting Christianity.

Even if the wahhabs attempted to stop the younger generations from destroying their countries through protests, the wahhabs couldn't do much because of the many social media influencers.

The wahhabs have already shown their part in trying to cause protests in their countries by promoting Shaun King.

Since the salafi's have Syria, the elites and their pawns will insist more that they are going to get from the Nile to the Euphrates.

Leading up to End Times, the Taliban will attack Iran along with the salafi Syrian government. The Taliban will attack the Eastern part of Iran to try to create the "Greater Khorasan". They will invade Iran through Turkey. The saud's will fund the Taliban.

After Syria has fallen, Syria will not return to its former state.

Religious knowledge will be lost partly because the salafi Syrian government will ruin their salafi beliefs and export it.

Because the zionists are so focused on the Nile to the Euphrates, they will not expect what is coming in Southern Arabia.

Because the only land that has value to the zionists is the Nile to the Euphrates, it would not affect the zionists what happens around the world when they are trying to get from the Nile to the Euphrates.

For years I was concerned about the elites' running countries, now I am more concerned about the elites and their pawns running social media and destroying countries through it.

The elites and their pawns who get elected will keep thinking they will bring a better future in America even if it is in decline. The elites and their pawns will keep thinking America is "flourishing" if their economy is booming. The elites and their pawns won't believe they are the worst leaders possible.

Because the elites and their pawns have social media influence run, their centers, and the countries they run, they will keep thinking they will win.

Leading up to End Times, you will see a lot of social media influencers that will be far away from religion and will claim to be Christian.

Leading up to End Times, there will be more false beliefs put on social media on the Abrahamic religions. The videos on social media will not get taken down from social media.

Leading up to End Times, the wahhab speakers are already bad at what they do. There will be more wahhab speakers and possibly less wahhabs who spend some time to learn wahhabism.

I don't believe a country could have a worse leader than someone who is part of al-qaeda in reference to Syria being run by Mohammad al-Julani.

Leading up to End Times, there may be social media influencers who confuse the public with putting out staged or fake videos on it.

If there is “World War 3”, there may only be Iraq and Iran who the zionists would be fighting in the Middle East.

Leading up to End Times, there will be more protests at college campuses.

Leading up to End Times, the wahhabs are going to make up their own fake hadiths that are not part of the hadiths to get a higher following. There is a fake hadith on social media that says “Messenger of Allah said: “Whoever wants to be pleased with his scroll of deeds should increase in seeking forgiveness. (Tabarani).”

Leading up to End Times, you will see the wahhabs push their social media influencers hard onto the public.

Leading up to End Times, you will see the catholics and the zionists continue to push their social media influencers.

Jake Brancatella on social media is a wahhab convert who distorts religion.

Leading up to End Times, because the salafi Syria will fight the zionists, neither side can be endorsed since it’s the zionists who want the “third” temple and the salafi’s who want the “third” temple.

During End Times, because all the Abrahamic religions will be distorted by the elites and their pawns, it won’t matter which religion is correct until the countries correct, and the religions are fixed with for instance the fake hadiths being removed. The countries will not correct, and the fake hadiths will not be removed however during End Times.

During End Times, there will be pawns of the elites that claim that “ogres” exist, the pawns of the elites will do this to add to religious beliefs.

Leading up to End Times, what could happen is that more people will be less convinced of End Times because they will study more about religion.

Leading up to End Times, the wahhabs will distort wahhabism believing that it is what their public wants. The wahhabs will think that it will cause their wahhab beliefs to be dominant over Christianity for example. This will cause wahhabism to be so different from what it was for many years.

After watching Tyler Oliveria’s YouTube channel, one could say that something bad is going to happen to America.

It isn’t that the number of people who are claiming America is in trouble in the future is what matters, it is the people who are educated on America’s outlook that are the ones who are realizing America could collapse in the future.

Leading up to End Times, many social media influencers are going to speak highly of the Abrahamic religions, there will not be the same arguments between many of the social media influencers about the Abrahamic religions.
